- Frame: where the target of the hyperlink will open: pick among _blank (opens in a new browser window), _self (opens in the active browser window), _top or _parent.

> ℹ️ Tip
> The value _self for the target frame will work in the vast majority of occasions. It is therefore not recommended to use the other choices unless absolutely necessary.

Managing the LibreOffice Gallery

By default, the Gallery is opened in the Sidebar. You can float the Gallery as you can other Sidebar decks. You can display the Gallery in Icon View (Figure 236) or Detailed View (Figure 257), and you can hide or show the Gallery by clicking on the Sidebar's Hide button.

Graphics in the Gallery are grouped by themes, such as Arrows, Diagrams, and People. You can create other groups or themes and add your own images or find extensions containing more graphics. Click a theme to see its contents displayed in the Gallery window.

> ✅ Note
> The default themes supplied with LibreOffice can not be customized, although new themes can be added; see "Adding a new theme to the Gallery" on page 245. The locked themes are easily recognizable by right-clicking on them; the only available option in the context menu is Properties.

Adding a new theme to the Gallery

You may wish to add your own theme to the Gallery to hold any images or other objects that you use frequently, for example, a company logo. Or you may wish to add several themes, each holding images for a specific project.
